Igor Sikorsky invented the modern helicopter and today the company that bears his name continues as the world leader in the design and manufacture of helicopters for commercial, industrial, and military uses. Sikorsky aircraft are used by all five branches of the United States Armed Forces and by commercial and military entities in more than 40 other nations. The President of the United States depends on the reliability and safety of a Sikorsky. At Sikorsky, "We pioneer flight solutions that bring people home everywhere... every time™." Long known for setting the standard for excellence among the world's executive transport helicopters, Sikorsky Aircraft has taken the concept of upward mobility to a whole new level. Associated Aircraft Group, Inc., (AAG), is a wholly owned subsidiary of Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation, offering integrated helicopter services in the Northeast. The nation's leading helicopter management, maintenance and charter helicopter company.
